

SanIndus doesn't have any salesmen on the road. Salesmen trying to sell something you don't need, we don't. If our specifications and functionalities don't attract the interest for your organization, there is no match. Discounts we don't give, the best technology we certainly have and our prices are reasonable. Technological development is where the focus of our company and our budgets is. In the interest of the organizations we serve with our technology. We sell to any organization who understands the benefit of our products by the specifications and the service model. Our integrators just connects redundant the on the storage cluster available 'software ports' to the network of the organization on redundant connections.
